

- the FCC should not implement any proposal that would lessen Indiana's Telephone Privacy law protections.
- Indiana's Telephone Privacy law has improved your time at home.
- Indiana's law has been very effective I used to receive 12-20 calls per week, now I only receive 1 or 2.
- I don't think any company or business has the right to solicit people on the telephone. If I don't want solicitors knocking on my door I put up a sign stating that. In my opinion this law is my sign for my telephone. Even though I may be a previous customer makes no difference. The operative word here is previous. Don't they think I know I WAS a customer? If I wanted to do business with any company (phone, credit card, etc) I would solicit their services. This law has virtually eliminated all of the hassle of time spent saying "I'm not interested" or having to get rude to make them understand I'm not interested.
